The Government's 'Train to Gain' initiative has been expanded to include even greater flexibility on those who qualify. The offer can assist many companies in training staff in the skills that they really need including customer service; engineering and manufacturing; leadership and management; services; finance and much more. NECC can help you access training through the new Train to Gain flexibilities and support you and your colleagues to higher levels of success in 2009. The new package has been specially tailored to better meet the needs of smaller and medium sized businesses to get the help they need during tougher economic times.
